Assistant/Associate Professors, Teacher Education
Job #11670

The Division of Teacher Preparation in the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College at Arizona State University (ASU) invites applicants for two positions at the assistant/associate professor level in the area of teacher education. The Division seeks an individual with a strong research program that focuses on studying and improving teacher education at all levels from initial certification to in-service professional development. The College is internationally and nationally known for its spirit of innovation in teacher preparation and has a strong emphasis on improving the preparation of teachers through field-based programs, post baccalaureate programs, professional development and outreach activities, in close collaboration with school districts and other youth serving organizations. In addition to initial certification programs, the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College provides graduate programs at the MA, M.Ed, Ph.D and Ed.D level in a number of areas. Both undergraduate and graduate education takes place on four campuses and at school-based sites.

The successful candidates will help to provide overall direction for the research agenda for teacher preparation programs and faculty leadership consistent with the goals and organization of the college. Teacher certification programs include: Elementary Education, Special Education (Dual Certification), Early Childhood Education, Physical Education, Diversity in Language and Learning, and Secondary Education.

Required Qualifications:
- Earned doctorate from an accredited university in education or a related field
- Programmatic leadership and organizational understanding
- Record of strong scholarly productivity appropriate to the rank of assistant or associate professor at Arizona State University
- Evidence of innovative and reform-minded approaches to teacher education
- Record of successful teaching at the university level and mentoring of doctoral students
- Candidates qualified for the rank of Associate Professor must also be eligible for tenure at Arizona State University

Desired Qualifications:
- Experience working with diverse students in formal and informal educational settings
- Experience teaching in PreK-12 setting
- Experience working with school districts
- Experience working with online programs
- Experience building relationships and research synergies within and between disciplines
- Accomplishment in obtaining and leading externally funded projects

The Teachers College benefits from a legacy of excellence in scholarship and research - our education graduate programs have been ranked among the best by U.S. News & World Report for 12 consecutive years. The College is a recognized leader in teacher education, cultivating mutually beneficial partnerships and using technology to prepare excellent teachers and school leaders who apply evidence-based knowledge that positively impacts students, families, and the community.
About the College and the University
Teachers College offers rigorous undergraduate and graduate degree programs. The college is dedicated to supporting faculty members so they can provide excellent instruction to students while pursuing bold scholarship that is changing the face of education. Teachers College’s award-winning faculty members are recognized for their master teaching by the university as well as community, national, and international organizations.

Arizona State University, a respected research institution in the Pac-12 Conference, is developing a new model of an American research university: one that measures its academic quality by the education its graduates receive; one at which researchers, while pursuing their scholarly interests, also consider the public good; and one whose faculty expands the concept of community service by accepting major responsibility for the health, economic and social development of its community.
