

Clinical Assistant Professor in Special Education

Job #122023

Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College
Division of Teacher Preparation

ASU's Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College (MLFTC) and the Division of Teacher Preparation invite applications for a clinical assistant professor in special education. The position includes teaching in a variety of environments, which may include classroom, community/professional experiences, or distance/online, creating course content, providing feedback on student work/assignments, managing course materials in Canvas (learning management system), establishing supportive relationships with students, and service to the college. The special education program welcomes applications from candidates who align with ASU's charter and are committed to inclusion and student success. The successful candidate will also advance ASU's Design Aspirations through teaching and service and effectively work with culturally, ethnically, and linguistically diverse populations.

Essential Duties:

- Delivering instruction in a variety of environments, which may include classroom, community/professional experiences, or distance/online, providing timely and actionable feedback on student assignments, managing course materials in Canvas (learning management system for the college), and utilizing technology tools to support student engagement (e.g., Zoom, Slack, Yellowdig).
- Establishing and maintaining warm and responsive relationships with students through facilitating course experiences and when engaging with students via office hours, emails, and meetings.
- Collaborating with colleagues and other professionals to ensure effective instruction for students throughout their program
- Developing course curricula and content and curating course materials aligned with program-level outcomes.
- Providing service to the program, division, college, and/or university through a variety of mechanisms, such as acting as a course coordinator in charge of collaborating with full-time and part-time faculty, maintaining, re-developing, and designing course materials, developing new courses, and content, related to special education workforce needs, serving on a college or university committee, or other related service activities.

Required Qualifications:

- Master's Degree in Special Education or a closely related field (degree must be awarded by the start date)
- 5+ years of teaching or working with PK-12th grade age children or youth

Desired Qualifications:

- Earned Ph.D. or Ed.D. in Special Education or a closely related field (degree must be awarded by the start date)
- 2+ years of teaching special education or closely related content at community college, university-level post-secondary, or other adult education settings.
- Evidence of course/curriculum development of special education content for community college, university-level post-secondary, or other adult education settings.
- Engagement in special education professional organizations

About the College

ASU's Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College creates knowledge, mobilizes people, and takes action to improve education.
