

Faculty Associate, CLIC Program
Pool Position #124030

ASU's Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College (MLFTC) invites applications to establish a pool for Faculty Associates that will serve as developers/trainers/ team mentors for the Collaborative Leading in Indigenous Community program for the 2023-2024 academic year. The successful candidate(s) will teach in-person or online courses, prepare course materials, and assist students. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College welcomes applications from candidates who align with ASU's charter and committed to inclusion and student success. The successful candidate will also advance ASU's Design Aspirations through teaching and service and effectively work with culturally, ethnically, and linguistically diverse populations.

Collaborative Leading in Indigenous Communities (CLIC) is a grant-funded program hosted by Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College at Arizona State University, in partnership with the Arizona Department of Education.

Devoted to cultivating Indigenous educational leadership, CLIC facilitates leadership teams comprised of Native American and Indigenous community members throughout Arizona to work toward reforming educational issues or accomplishing educational goals. CLIC provides culturally responsive and relevant leadership training modules and other opportunities for program participants. All modules and program components are offered for free to participants.

Leadership at CLIC is defined broadly: Indigenous educational leadership teams can include typical school network roles such as principals, teachers and parents. However, other community members interested in supporting education are also welcome (e.g., elders, students, extended kin, school staff, and more).

Faculty Associate positions are one semester (assignments will vary between 2 - 15 weeks), non-benefits-eligible, and fixed-term appointments with no tenure implications, not to exceed .40 FTE. Professional learning courses are generally 4-8 weeks in length, but there may be some variation. The number of courses is contingent upon needs, funding, and sufficient enrollment. Individuals hired as Faculty Associates may not hold multiple, non-benefits-eligible appointments at Arizona State University. Salary is based upon qualifications and assigned teaching load.

This recruitment is to establish a part-time hiring pool for temporary and semester appointments. Applications are considered for the current year only. Applicants who are not hired are encouraged to reapply for the next posting.

The position serves as a lead instructor/developer/trainer/team mentor and includes teaching during collaborative times (for synchronous and asynchronous courses), managing the collaborative's Canvas (learning management system) page, and establishing warm and supportive relationships with participants through collaboratives, office hours, emails, and meetings, as needed.

Required Qualifications:

- Master's Degree or higher in Educational Leadership or related field at the time of appointment
- Evidence of effective teaching
- Evidence of effective coaching/mentoring
- Relevant teaching/leadership experience in K-12 setting

Desired Qualifications:

- Terminal Degree in Educational Leadership or related field
- Successfully serving as a K-12 principal for at least 3 years
- Example(s) of learning (e.g., coursework, professional development, trainings) in issues of equity, justice, diversity, and inclusion (racial, dis/ability) in educational contexts
- Experience working with indigenous populations
- Experience using course management systems such as Canvas/Blackboard and digital tools like Zoom, Google Slides and/or Jamboard

About the College

ASU's Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College creates knowledge, mobilizes people, and takes action to improve education.
